OVERVIEW

The University of California Undocumented Legal Services Center serves the immigration-related legal needs of undocumented students and undocuented family members of UC students. Operating out of UC Davis School of Law, the groundbreaking program reaches out to students at UC campuses without law schools—UC Merced, UC San Francisco, UC Santa Cruz, UC Santa Barbara, UC San Diego, and UC Riverside—to provide the legal assistance they need in order to achieve their educational goals and reach their full potential.

SUMMARY

California is home to approximately 2.5 million undocumented immigrants—more than any other state. Many who came at a young age now find themselves encountering significant barriers as they pursue higher education. Among other challenges, undocumented students face difficulties in applying for work and financial aid, and they often fear that disclosing their status to school administrators will have legal consequences for their families. The state and federal governments offer programs that can help, but successful use of these resources requires a level of legal expertise not readily available in most immigrant communities. The UC Undocumented Legal Services Center provides the following free services:

- Immigration legal advice and representation for undocumented students in the UC system and their families.
- Legal support for informational and know-your-rights sessions at the six UC campuses without law schools.
- Legal support for campus clinics and workshops to assist with applications for benefits available under the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA), Deferred Action for Parents of Americans (DAPA) and other immigration related relief.
- In-depth consultations and direct representation in immigration court or before immigration agencies.
